

A wedding without flowers is like a beach without sunshine. Or a forest without birds.

Floriste know how flowers can transform a wedding into something extra special. Each nuptial client receives a personalised service—perfect bouquets and buttonholes, serene church adornments, breathtaking reception displays.

With well over 30 years of experience between them, Floriste's specialist staff welcome any assignment, from small and simple to grand occasion.

Floriste is a rarity among florists in that 90 percent of its flowers are grown in its own garden. Orchardlea, the flower wholesaling and retail side of the business, nurtures five acres of blooms under cover at Cradoc in the beautiful Huon Valley.

The farm-fresh quality of its blooms is enhanced by arrangements that are as imaginative as they are individual. Floriste staff are forever looking for new ideas, using plants in fresh, different ways to give a special quality to each bridal occasion.

Floriste know when to offer guidance and when to step back and listen. True professionals, they understand the special relationship between a bride and her flowers.
